

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

ZHENHUA LOGISTICS (HONG KONG)
CO., LTD.,

No. C-13-2658 EMC

Plaintiff,

v.

METAMINING, INC., et al.,

Defendants.

ORDER GRANTING IN PART
PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR LEAVE
TO AMEND; AND GRANTING IN PART
AND DENYING IN PART
DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO DISMISS

(Docket Nos. 66, 78)

Plaintiff Zhenhua Logistics (Hong Kong) Co., Ltd. has filed suit against multiple defendants based on an alleged breach of contract by Metamining, Inc. and an alleged fraudulent transfer by Metamining to Ouro Mining, Inc. and two Metamining officers, i.e., Ling Li and Song Qiang Chen. The current operative complaint is the first amended complaint ("FAC"). Currently pending before the Court are two motions: (1) a motion to dismiss filed by Metamining, Mr. Li, and Mr. Chen and (2) a motion for leave to file a second amended complaint ("SAC") by Zhenhua.

Having considered the parties' briefs and accompanying submissions, the Court finds this matter suitable for disposition without oral argument and VACATES the hearing set for September 19, 2013. The Court GRANTS Zhenhua's motion to amend and GRANTS in part and DENIES in part the motion to dismiss for the reasons discussed below.

I. DISCUSSION

The Court addresses first the motion to amend because, if the motion is granted, then the motion to dismiss the claims asserted in the FAC will largely be rendered moot, although the Court

1 recognizes that some of the arguments raised in the motion to dismiss will still be applicable to the
2 proposed SAC.

3 A. Motion to Amend

4 Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 15, a “court should freely give leave [to amend] when
5 justice so requires.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a)(2). In general, “[f]ive factors are taken into account to
6 assess the propriety of a motion for leave to amend: bad faith, undue delay, prejudice to the 7 opposing party, futility of amendment, and whether the plaintiff has previously amended the
8 complaint.” Johnson v. Buckley, 356 F.3d 1067, 1077 (9th Cir. 2004).

9 The factors above all weigh in favor of allowing the amendment. First, there is nothing to 10 show that Zhenhua unduly delayed in seeking the amendment, particularly as this case was only
11 filed in June 2013. Second, the amendment is not prejudicial to Metamining. As indicated above,
12 this case is still in its infancy; indeed, no trial date has been set as of yet. Third, the amendment can
13 hardly be said to be futile, especially because Zhenhua has not added any new claims to the 14 amended complaint. In fact, Zhenhua has dropped claims in the amended complaint. Fourth,
15 Zhenhua’s amendment does not appear to be motivated by bad faith. Finally, while Zhenhua has
16 previously amended its original complaint (one time), that seems to have been a fairly minor
17 amendment that was made the day after the complaint was filed.

18 Accordingly, the Court grants Zhenhua’s motion for leave to amend. Immediately after 19 receipt of this order, Zhenhua shall file the proposed SAC that was attached to its motion. See
20 Vafidis Decl., Ex. A (proposed SAC).

21 B. Motion to Dismiss

22 Because the Court is granting Zhenhua’s motion, the motion to dismiss filed by Metamining,
23 Mr. Li, and Mr. Chen is rendered moot as that motion was formally directed to the FAC.

24 However, the Court recognizes that some of the arguments made in the motion are still
25 applicable to the SAC which the Court has allowed Zhenhua to file and, in the interest of justice, the 26 Court shall address those arguments.

27 Metamining’s main argument is that the case should be dismissed because the proper forum
28 for the case is the arbitration, not this Court. In response, Zhenhua does not really dispute that the

1 arbitration is the proper forum for its claim for breach of contract. Its main point is that it has
2 initiated this case largely to ensure that it can obtain judicial relief in aid of arbitration.

3 The Court's prior order denying Zhenhua's request for a preliminary injunction recognized
4 that judicial relief in aid of arbitration might be warranted. See Docket No. 62 (Order at 5) (stating
5 that "the Court does not bar Zhenhua from seeking relief from this Court should, e.g., an arbitrator
6 issue preliminary injunctive relief to Zhenhua which Zhenhua then seeks to enforce in this Court or
7 should Zhenhua demonstrate that, despite diligent attempts to exhaust arbitral remedies, the tribunal
8 refuses to issue interim relief on ground unrelated to the merits"). Accordingly, the Court shall not
9 dismiss the instant case but rather shall stay it, a remedy that Metamining has essentially requested
10 as alternative relief. See 9 U.S.C. § 3 (providing that a court shall stay a case pending an arbitration
11 upon application by of one of the parties); RoadTechs, Inc. v. MJ Highway Tech., Ltd., 79 F. Supp.
12 2d 637, 639 (E.D. Va. 2000) (noting that "neither the Convention itself nor its implementing 13 legislation expressly confers upon district courts the authority to stay an action pending arbitration"
14 but adding that § 208 allows incorporation of the FAA where there is no conflict and finding that § 3
15 presents no conflict).

16 To the extent Zhenhua has suggested that there should not be a stay now but only after it has 17 conducted some discovery into whether Metamining violated the TRO, the Court rejects that 18 argument. Zhenhua has not put forward any good faith basis as to why it believes Metamining has
19 violated the terms of the TRO. The Court acknowledges that, in his declaration, Zhenhua's counsel
20 claims that, "[b]ased on the investigation conducted thus far, Zhenhua has a good faith basis to 21 believe that after the date when the action was filed and served on Metamining, Metamining has 22 transferred assets outside California," Vafidis Decl. ¶ 4, but that declaration is problematic for at
23 least two reasons: (1) It is conclusory and does not provide any details at all; and (2) it does not
24 address whether Metamining transferred assets after the TRO issued.

25 The Court emphasizes that this case and any further interlocutory relief should be pursued in 26 the arbitration. The jurisdiction retained by the Court in aid of arbitration is narrow.

1 The Court therefore denies Metamining's motion to dismiss but grants its alternative request
2 for a stay. The stay shall take effect immediately upon the filing of this order. Before effecting the
3 stay, however, the Court also grants Metamining's motion to dismiss the claim for injunctive relief.

4 II. CONCLUSION

5 For the foregoing reasons, the Court grants Zhenhua's motion to amend. The Court also 6 grants Metamining's motion to dismiss the claim for injunctive relief, as pled in the SAC, but
7 otherwise denies the motion. Finally, the Court grants Metamining's alternative request for a stay.
8 The stay shall take effect immediately upon the filing of this order, but this ruling does not preclude
9 Zhenhua from asking for judicial relief in aid of arbitration under the narrow terms previously
10 prescribed by this Court (to enforce orders of relief granted in arbitration).

11 The case management conference set for October 10, 2013, is VACATED and rescheduled
12 for March 13, 2013, at 10:30 a.m. The parties shall file a joint case management conference
13 statement one week prior thereto.

14 This order disposes of Docket Nos. 66 and 78.

15
16 IT IS SO ORDERED.

17
18 Dated: September 6, 2013

19
20
21 EDWARD M. CHEN
22 United States District Judge
23
24
25
26
27
28